The latest LED technology makes these screen exposing units economical and efficient to operate, delivering accurate, professional results and production consistency for any screen printing operation. LED lamps mean quicker exposure times and longer light source life expectancy.

Ideal for four-color process work, long runs, and extremely fine detail reproduction, A.W.T.'s Pro-Light LED exposure units offer quicker exposure times depending on the type of emulsion, coating thickness, or film being used. Undercutting is minimized in most applications. The optional digital timer ensures precise exposure intervals, virtually eliminating under or over exposure of your screens.
